TRANSPORTATION IN STATE MEETS DEMAND

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6.—While transportation difficulties caused by the United States are holding up war work—specifically supplies—Wisconsin is boasting excellent transportation facilities.

Since the rugged state is one of the chief food producing states in the union, transportation from the outlying regions is of chief importance. The state has three market centers well distributed. It is the only one of four upper Mississippi Valley states having a railroad line extending through every county.

Of this feature the department of agriculture has the following to say: "The removal of timber necessitated the construction of well built railroads for the expenditure of large sums for their upkeep and the needed development of trunk lines in the states further west greatly increased the volume through Wisconsin, resulting in better schedules, larger sums for maintenance of right of way, new and better equipment and the constant addition of trackage."

Several main lines traverse the state: The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie (Soo Line), Chicago & Northwestern, Green Bay and Southern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and others. These are interconnected in all directions by branch and connecting lines and would be difficult to find any points in the state more than 15 miles from some railroad.

Twenty-one counties also have direct water transportation by way of the Great Lakes or Mississippi river, and only a slightly less degree every county is benefited.

Wisconsin has 7,587 miles of public roads, including the last surveys, and stands fourth among all states in mileage of roads improved with stone or gravel. Because of this the average haul from farm to market is less than in any other state.

COMPANY M KEEPS FINE REPUTATION IN NEW REGIMENTS

Private Company M, 128 Infantry, 64th Brigade, 32d Division, N. G., Camp MacArthur, Waco, Texas.

With the complete reorganization of the national guard upon its concentration in Texas, these old regiments have lost their identity and unless mail is addressed properly lengthy delays are involved in its delivery. With the Janesville men being ordered to send all mail to the address cited above. We have been so very busy that I have not found very much time to write you. We are drilling most of the time now and every minute in drill counts up.

Company "M" is rapidly getting acquainted with their new surroundings and are beginning to show up the other companies just as they did in the first Regiment. We have such a good captain that there is no reason why we should not make a wonderful record. All the other men in the other companies have a good word for our Captain and many want to transfer to our company.

We expect to be in a hundred days or more in a few days and then our company will be a full strength company. The Edgerton boys want to transfer to Company "M" and we sure want them. We will have more than 250 boys, all from Rock county, and some of the finest examples of young manhood there is in Camp MacArthur.

They sure are putting us through strenuous work up here but it is a work that will make a man out of every one of us. In a few weeks we will be living in the sands of Texas. This life will be new to us but such is our lot and we are willing to do anything for the sake of "Uncle Sam" and "Old Glory".

Our mail is coming in rather slow these days because of the fact that our address has been changed, thus slowing up the delivery of the company mail. The main duty of the company is to get the mail and deliver it now has to go to two postoffices or headquarters to get our mail. At one place it is addressed to Co. M, 1st Wisconsin Infantry and at the other it is addressed to Co. M, 128th Inf., N. G., Camp MacArthur, Waco, Texas. The latter is the correct address of the company at the present time however.

The people of Janesville must remember that we like to receive mail just the same even if it is a little bit stale and a few days behind time. Each man of the company has donated one dollar in order that our company could purchase a set of unannealed ware dishes which are now being used in our "Mess Shack." All the tables are covered with white oil cloth and the kitchen police set the table every day, wash the dishes, and make every other service. This is quite a change from our way of eating heretofore and we enjoy it very much. Some of the people that had the opportunity to see the company at Camp Douglas can testify that this way of serving meals is much better than the old way.

The company took part in another regimental parade in the city of Janesville and our boys are not as level as the parade ground in Camp Douglas but it serves the purpose just as well. Part of the ground has been leveled and in places it is very hard walking. It seems rather strange to parade before a different major and a different colonel. Colonel Turner is our colonel at present.

Colonel Jackson was colonel of our regiment when we were members of the "First."

Many of the boys went to church last evening and the church people in Waco are very kind and give a good hand. They are even inviting us to their church socials, etc. I attended the Austin Avenue Methodist church last evening and while there I met a great number of our boys. Among some of the men in uniform were colonels, lieutenants, sergeants, majors and many other men. So you see the boys do not forget their church ties and can assure you that it seems real good to get to a church again. Of course we have nice field services but they are nothing like the services we used to have back home in Janesville.

The quartet is practicing up this evening and expect to give another program in Camp MacArthur soon just like the good programs they used to stage in Camp Douglas.

Company Notes.
Corporal Craig is very busy these days looking for additions to his menagerie. The corporal now has six horned lizards and a few scorpions in his collection.

When our boys assemble for a meal in the "Mess Shack" they feel just as much at home as they possibly could if they were eating in the dining room of the "Strat" or "Grand."

Private Hanson is now acting as "Dining Room Orderly" and he sure makes a good one. Hanson keeps the dining hall just as clean as a dining room in a private home with the exception of the carpet or rug, of which we have none.

Many of the boys are busy corresponding with the "Unknown Friends." As an explanation I might say that out of our way "South" many of the men wrote their address on slips of paper and handed them out of the car windows to the girls. Of course the girls are usually anxious to write to "Soldier Boys" so consequently the boys are very busy answering some of the letters received from this source.

Want Ad.
Wanted—Some of the good Janesville drinking water—Every member of Company M.

Wanted—An early return to Janesville—The homesick bunch. Not many to be found but there are a few of them. Some of the people of Janesville can guess who these men are.

The menu is not posted any more but I will endeavor to give the police detail each day. We do not have as many men on police duty as we used to have, the number being cut down to four men. The detail for today was as follows:

In charge of quarters—Sergeant McDermott.
Fatigue—Corporal Jordan, Privates R. Ryan, O. Berger, Burnhans and Chesak.
Kitchen Police—Weeks, Chesak and Burnhans. The kitchen police are now picked out of the police list.

STATE ODD FELLOWS CONVENE HERE FOR ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT

Upwards of 150 Delegates Expected for Encampment and Department Council.

More than one hundred and fifty delegates from all parts of the state will gather at Janesville today for the three days sessions of the grand encampment and department council of the International Order of Odd Fellows. It is to be the severest test of annual convention held in this state and bids fair to be one of the most successful and most generally attended.

Representatives of the various camps, not only of this section, but in the most remote parts of the state have sent word of their coming, and with their wives will constitute a large delegation in the city. The encampment opens Monday evening with a double session, when the Department Council of the Patriarchal Militant, the military order within the Odd Fellows, will start their business meetings. At the same time a general get-together social meeting and entertainment will be held for all Odd Fellows and Rebekahs at the East Side hall.

Meals will continue the following day, culminating in the only public feature of the encampment, when a parade with the band will act as an escort of honor for the officers presiding in the grand officers' hall. Their headquarters at the Myers Hotel, while those of the Patriarchal Militant will be at the Grand Hotel. Members of the local lodge will march to these two hotels and thence to the armory, where the impressive Decoration of Chivalry will be conferred.

This is to be followed by talks and a reception for the Odd Fellows and their invited friends, with a dance as the concluding feature of the evening. The program of the evening will be selections by the orchestra, an address of welcome by Mayor James A. Fithers, one of the leading members of the local lodge, and a male quartet, and responses to Mayor Fithers' address by George Gerlach, Grand Patriarch and Brig. Gen. Burne Pollock, department commander. A large number of uniform will lead the Grand March.

Wednesday morning will be occupied by further business sessions, while the afternoon there will be a school for the blind. Officers for the coming year will be elected and the place where the year's meeting will be held will be decided upon. The headquarters and bureau of information for the visiting delegates will be at the west side hall, in charge of the committee headed by Fred H. Koebelin, and consisting of Mayor James A. Fithers, C. H. Chase, C. W. Schwarz, G. G. Watterman and J. W. Van Beynum.

ENLISTS TO SAVE HIMSELF FROM JAIL

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 6.—Lee Kinna enlisted in the army yesterday morning, after a long and big story. Or at least a complicated one. Kinna blew into town from the north yesterday. He became acquainted with two Camp Edgerton soldiers and they told him that if he enlisted he would get the better of him, and he invited the two soldiers into a nearby saloon to wait while he got a drink. He bought a drink and turned to get his change. One of the soldiers standing behind him, reached over and took the glass and drank it. Then they picked up the change and arrested the three. When they came to book the charge, however, the police were at a loss. The only thing that any of the three was guilty of was theft. And Kinna would not press a charge. Kinna had not given the soldiers liquor. Neither had the saloon keeper. So the police compromised. If Kinna would not back out of the army, he would be released. He went down last night. The soldiers went with him.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR W. S. S. A. CONVENTION

Many Rock County People Planning to Attend Annual Sunday School Meet at Fond du Lac.

The state workers are planning new features in connection with the annual convention of the Wisconsin Sunday School association, to be held at Fond du Lac this year. J. L. Rogers of Oshkosh, state secretary of the association, was in Janesville yesterday to meet a number of interested Sunday school workers of nearby counties and A. L. Hennings, the Janesville agent of the Chicago & Northwestern with reference to a special train from Janesville to Fond du Lac Nov. 13, the opening day of the convention. The train will leave Janesville at 10:45 and arrive in Fond du Lac at 1:35, in time for the opening of the convention. It will include from Grant, Lafayette and Green counties, who will arrive at 10:20, and the Rock and Walworth county delegations. It is expected that these counties will send at least 100 delegates.

The train will pick up delegates at Fort Atkinson, Jefferson and Watertown junctions and other points along the line. The convention will be held Nov. 13, 14 and 15, and Fond du Lac is preparing for 1,000 delegates.

TRIAL UNDECIDED IN BELOIT MURDER

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 6.—Beloit doesn't know yet whether Claude Coleman killed Billy Rags, better known as William DeLough here a week ago Thursday night. But it knows a lot more about the facts than was known before. Do Lough was found dead last week on a terrace on St. Paul avenue. There were no marks of any kind on him. An autopsy showed that a hemorrhage at the base of the brain caused death. That was what the inquest heard yesterday brought out. But the preliminary hearing of Coleman, a negro held on a manslaughter warrant, brought out the fact that Coleman tried to eject Billy from a neighbor's porch at 10:30 into a tussel with him. Some blows were struck and the white man dropped dead. The coroner for the defense moved in court yesterday afternoon to disqualify the charge because no proof of a crime had been presented. Judge Clark is to think it over and decide later whether he will hold Coleman for trial or not.

Friday's Markets.
Chicago, Oct. 6.—Fancy hogs sold strong to 5c higher yesterday, while packing grades were largely 10¢/15¢ lower. Best sold at $19.55, the high point of the week. A drove of choice butchers cost 5c more than a week ago, while Armour's mixed cost 35¢ less than previous Friday at $13.35.

Underweight swine are coming more freely and this week's average weight promises to be lighter since June at about 232 lbs. previous week. Common to fair light show 50¢/75¢ decline compared with previous Friday.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $18.50, against $18.90 Thursday, $19.20 a week ago, $19.64 a year ago and $25.25 two years ago.

There was no change in cattle values yesterday and features were lacking in the trade. Quality was poor and offerings moved slowly. Calves in good demand and several bunches reached $16. A few range steers and cows were offered that sold steady to strong. Yearlings were sold around $5.00, against $2.57 the previous week. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers... $16.50@17.60
Poor to good steers... 12.50@16.25
Yearlings, fair to fancy... 11.75@17.50
Fat cows and heifers... 6.00@12.75

Native bulls and stags... 6.00@10.25
Feeding cattle, 600@1,100 lbs... 6.50@11.25
Poor to fancy veal calves 10.00@16.00
Western range steers... 7.25@16.00

Hog Prices Wider.
Best hogs yesterday ruled strong to 5c higher, while others sold largely 15¢ lower. The spread between common and best lots was widest of the week. Trade was irregular, and closed decidedly weak on the packing grades, although best butchers were comparatively steady. Pigs were more active and prices steady to a little higher. Quotations:

Silk of sales... $18.35@19.45
Heavy butchers and ship-ping... 19.20@19.65
Light butchers, 190@230 lbs... 19.15@19.65

STATE A MARTYR TO OTHERS THAN "BOB"

LA FOLLETTE NOT ONLY ONE WHO HAS MISREPRESENTED STATE—BUT PEOPLE ARE GRATIFIED.

SITUATION IS ACUTE

Action Taken Against Milwaukee Leader Brings into Prominence Other State Problems.

By ELMs B. Usher.

Milwaukee, Oct. 6.—Senator La Follette has occupied much public attention this week. This demonstration has one gratification for Wisconsin. So much of it comes from other states in all parts of the union that he cannot pose as a martyr to the enemies at home who have often done him substantial service by their cooperation. It is well, as I said last week, for Wisconsin people to realize their own culpability for this shame and also that there are others for whom they are also responsible whose public records are only a little less objectionable than that of La Follette. Bear in mind with proper humility that Wisconsin is the only state in the union with an overwhelming majority of its representation in congress against the government all the time.

The Milwaukee Leader, Editor Victor La Berger's daily newspaper, of which the name of Mrs. Berger of the Wisconsin state board of education appears second in the list of stockholders, was denied the use of the mails last Wednesday by the postoffice department. It is hoped that the importance of this fact may impress Gov. Philipp, whose appointment of Mrs. Berger on the state board can have no other effect outside Wisconsin than to convey the impression that Wisconsin not only tolerates but honors the teachings of people who are thus branded by the government of the United States as public enemies.

We hear, notwithstanding the seriousness of the situation in Wisconsin and no man who realizes it can underestimate conditions here, that some men are thinking only, or chiefly, of political plans. I want to spell out a parable to such men and see if they will apply it.

In 1846 the first man to enroll as a private in the first company to offer its services to the governor of Wisconsin was a handsome young fellow of 30, who had the right American spirit. At 18 he had returned from an adventure with the Argonauts of California's gold discovery. At 30 he had been admitted to the bar. By the fall of 1862 he had laid his left arm down on the battlefield of Gettysburg and been breveted a brigadier general. While at home on sick leave he was elected secretary of state, then governor three times. Later he was consul general at Liverpool, then at Paris. Later he succeeded the gifted James Russell Lowell as minister to Spain, where he resigned, full of years and honors, to come home and have the Grand Army of the Republic make him its national commander in chief. Twenty years of public service was his country's mood of praise for this patriot—Julius Fitchell.

In the 1898 Spanish war there was a more striking example of rapid promotion. Col. Theodore Roosevelt led his regiment up San Juan hill on July 1. In November, four months later, he was elected governor of New York, receiving over 50 per cent of all the votes cast.

These are times when men are the creatures of events. He who thinks he will "set up" little political houses of cards in Wisconsin may see them blow away with one gust of opinion that may any day greet some now unknown hero, who returns with an empty sleeve from the battle front of Europe next autumn.

Julius Reut is the right sort of a politician for these times. He does what the government asks him to do, and does them in masterly fashion, and he is big enough not to care to any of the president's war blarney that it was "an address which compelled the attention of Americans and of the world, and which forever must stand as one of the great state papers of modern times."

The war is bringing many new lessons in efficiency. It is demonstrating, for example, that but for the few weak and smaller concerns that cannot make steel as cheaply as the United States Steel company, the government price fixers could not make the price lower. In the fixing of coal prices they could be lower if the operators were the only ones to consider. In this, as in other fields, the government is in many ways only as strong as its weaker forces.

But when the prices are so fixed as to let the small fellow live the public gets a measure of its recompense for higher prices by surtaxes on the larger profits of the big concerns. There is also a benefit of the broader sort in maintaining the efficiency of the great concerns, which have shown their value as sustained leadership abroad in a thousand ways since this war began.

Americans taught England how to change her factories in thirty and sixty days to meet tremendous war necessities. It has taught all the warring nations the supremacy of the machine in many fields of invention and science. Even the things we had asked to supply ourselves, war supplies, airplanes and much more, were "American inventions." But the real point goes further. While we are shipping tractors and portable sawmills to England and France, and coordinating our military and naval forces in a marvelous manner, our supreme industry, husbandry, is still struggling with many primal problems, notwithstanding our boasts and our agricultural "education."

Few farmers know anything of the costs of producing their products or of the value of their own time. We still see farm machinery and even that new-fangled farm machine, the automobile, extravagantly and wastefully abused. The great corporations and the army and navy are giving demonstrations of about all of the practical results we see of that "efficiency" which has been the boast of so much of recent education. But industries are furnishing the commanders of practical results, any many of the most conspicuous ones, like Dan Willard, head of the United War Board, are graduates of the locomotive throttle and the coal breaker, and not of the college, experts from which they employ and direct. The fault in the efficiency that has been taught seems to be that both the broad view and the intensive training of the great industry has produced "experts" and specialists who are not leaders of men. The colleges fall behind West Point in this respect.

On the other hand, the president, who is commander-in-chief, is a producer of the college. The supreme test is yet to come for us all. In the near future theory will give way to enforced and practical necessity. The chaff will be winnowed away and the crucial test of American manhood will leave a combination of all the really practical elements of our national life. The rest will be forgotten as if it had never been. Lord Northcliffe, in a recent address to the convention of the business men of the country, at Atlantic City, said that at first it was hard for the business man to get consideration but that "today whenever you find a big job being done well, you will find a British business man behind it." One reason why the agents of the Old Line Life Insurance Co. of America are now a half million of examined business ahead of last year's full twelve month is worthy of attention. The secret is that this company is up to date. It is always giving the force something new and interesting to do, and it is always backing them up when they are enthusiastic. A new policy that covers all the contingencies of life, accident, health, and protection of the family, is the latest thing and the agents are making a great strike with it because no other company offers such a perfect combination. The current three months promise to be the best of the best year in the company's history.

CHEESE MAKERS MUST KEEP MOISTURE CONTENT DOWN

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6.—State Dairy and Food Commissioner George J. Weigle promises a campaign of prosecution against cheese makers who sell cheese having a moisture content in excess of 40 per cent. The Wisconsin law fixes the maximum at 40 per cent and the federal law fixes it at 36 per cent. Mr. Weigle says that in the face of warnings some of the cheese makers are making and selling cheese that contains a moisture greater than that allowed by the Wisconsin law. During the past two weeks much evidence on the matter has been gathered by inspectors and he intends to file suits against all of the violators.

START LIBERTY LOAN CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

ALL ORGANIZATION IS COMPLETED AND ACTUAL DRIVE WILL BE LAUNCHED ON MONDAY.

MUST TOP BELOIT MARK

Thirty Thousand Dollars Already Subscribed—Is Most Attractive Investment on Market.

With about thirty thousand dollars already subscribed to the second Liberty loan in this city, the various campaign teams will launch their drive Monday throughout the business and pleasure districts of the city. Beloit has guaranteed $750,000 and Janesville is out to beat this figure. It means more than double the amount raised on the first loan, but under the direction of County Director Malcolm G. Jeffris and City Chairman Allen P. Lovejoy, a campaign has been mapped out that will reach every individual in the city.

At the phase of the campaign it is desirable to the average investigator that the first bonds. From the patriotic standpoint it demands the support of every man, woman and child in the country, and the financial point of view, it is a better buy than anything offered on the bond market today.

Some seventy-odd people gathered yesterday at the library for the last pre-campaign rally and learned all details of the bond, together with all selling arguments. Mr. Jeffris told in a stirring address the necessity of the campaign, the financial point of view, it is a better buy than anything offered on the bond market today.

Agreement on the part of the four banks, through whose hands every bond subscription must pass, makes it possible for those in the most modest circumstances to do their part. A partial payment plan is the method adopted to bring the loan within the reach of every person. Bonds may be purchased and paid for in either monthly or weekly installments within the next six months. Every person is urged to estimate what he can save, for the country is at war, with the coming six months. This amount he should turn in for Liberty bonds, planning his payments either weekly or monthly, according to convenience.

In the first loan many manufacturing concerns adopted this policy, their employees and the banks extended similar courtesies to many of their patrons, but the scheme was not followed as extensively as it will be in this loan. With present conditions, particularly no one who will be unable to buy at least a fifty dollar bond, and it is upon that theory that the local committee estimates a success which will top Beloit's guarantee of $750,000.

Amounts up to five thousand dollars are exempt from taxation, so there will be few people in Janesville whose investments will be subject to tax. In the opinion of many financiers, the new bonds will in a short time be as negotiable as currency, with the added advantage that they increase in value by semi-annual payments of interest. The bonds pay four per cent interest, an amount which from the government corresponds in normal times to a seven per cent payment on private bonds; as a consequence they are bound to appreciate in value when peace comes. They are convertible into any future war bond, and they are not subject to any loss in holding for another loan. They are backed by the wealth, the resources and honor of the United States, and represent such the most secure investment on the market.

Members of the factory committee yesterday visited many of the manufacturing establishments to line up the work for the coming week, when a number of meetings will be held with the employees. Speakers are secured and with the cooperation of the manufacturers and superintendents active campaigns will be conducted among the men.

The drive throughout the entire city will start with a rally on Monday night at 8 o'clock. The ground will be covered within the first week of the campaign, leaving the remainder of the period to gather in the $750,000. To raise more than $750,000 demands the aid of every citizen of Janesville, but the campaigners are confident.

FIVE IN MUNICIPAL COURT THIS MORNING

Judge Maxfield Hands Out Some Stiff Sentences to Drunks Who Were Tried This Morning.

Too much liquor in the past two or three days spelled the downfall of five men in the municipal court this morning when Judge Maxfield handed out some stiff sentences to the men who were all charged with drunkenness. All except one of the men received flat sentences without the chance of paying a fine. Fred Langdon and William Langdon, brothers, went out together for a time and ended up together in the court this morning. Both entered a plea of guilty but the judge handed down the same sentences. Fred fared better than his brother by being the only man who appeared in court who did not get a flat sentence. He was given $25 and costs or thirty days in jail. William on the other hand, got the same sentence with a ten day flat sentence added to it for good measure.

Orlan McConnell, a self-proclaimed orator of note, told the judge of his record in high-sounding adjectives and got himself in bad. Before he finished his speech to the judge, he had told of being in the penitentiaries of two or three states, but he further contended that they could not put him in the penitentiary at Waupun. The judge considered the case and gave him ninety days straight in the county jail.

Otto Gady and Kaute Stavins were the other two to be sentenced for drunkenness. Gady got $25 and costs and ten days flat in addition or thirty days. Knute came before the judge immediately after Gady and was given the same sentence with the flat sentence.

PROVISIONS OF WAR TAX ARE EXPLAINED

Federal Revenue Collector Explained Provisions of Emergency Tax to Local Dealers Yesterday.

An explanation of the provisions of the new tax revenue law which is now in operation and an outline of the plan by which the dealers in this city, as well as the whole country, can be sure of getting the maximum of profit to raise money by the application of this new law were the subject discussed by Charles G. Rogers, internal revenue collector from the district of the new law, at a meeting of the retailers who will be hit by the tax held yesterday, Friday afternoon in Bismark Hall.

The speaker explained the provisions of the new law and to what extent it would effect the goods on hand and held by the dealers and the tax to be imposed on all future purchases. It will be necessary, he stated, to take an itemized inventory of each and every small amount of any taxable goods and the report placed in the hands of the internal revenue collector so that they may check the goods. Failure to comply with the law will mean that the penalties of the law will be strictly enforced.

About two hundred were present at the meeting which was called at two o'clock. In addition to local dealers from Edgerton, Janesville and Beloit, representatives of the National War Work Council were present to hear the important explanation. Following the talk here the speaker left for Beloit where he met the dealers of that city Friday evening.

Every retail liquor dealer was either present or represented at the meeting, as were all the cigar makers in the city. The tax on cigars and tobacco will be the same as the tax on other goods, and the dealers of the city were also among those present.

To conform strictly with the law every package of taxable goods no matter how small or of what value must be taxed and the merchant must have an individual owner make this inventory previous to the arrival of the revenue inspector. Labels will be printed to paste on the inventory articles to show their contents and values.

Mr. Rogers finished his talk by explaining the necessity of the tax on the part of the government and the expected results. He stated that the tax on the part of the government and the expected results. He stated that the tax on the part of the government and the expected results.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS TO RAISE $15,000

Rock County's Portion to the Campaign to Raise Funds for "Y" Huts in the Army.

Rock county's portion of the Y. M. C. A. campaign is approximately $15,000. The campaign will be made as soon as the Liberty Loan is brought to a successful finish. The Rock County men who were at the Chicago convention to organize the campaign are Andrew McIntosh and Walter Mabbott of Edgerton, Dr. L. M. Babcock and Prof. L. H. Stringer of Milton, L. Eager of Evansville and W. P. Sauty of Janesville.

One of the important facts brought out is that in the United States alone 600 army buildings costing from $5,000 to $8,000 are being erected in army camps. It is the goal of the Y. M. C. A. men to have a "hut" wherever American boys are stationed. There are now 2,200 Y. M. C. A. workers in the army at home and abroad. They must have 2,300 more.

Here is the way the money is to be raised.

The United States is divided into six military departments composed of groups of states. These departments are: The Eastern, Southern, Central, Western, Pacific and Alaska.

Each of the national plan of campaign, will be divided into districts, the districts into counties, reducing the solicitation to the individual in the city, town or open country. It is recognized that there are hardly an American village but has a boy under arms. That village must help. Each state will plan its own campaign to be put on following the campaign for the second Liberty Loan.

Mr. E. J. Cooper of Minneapolis was elected chairman of the campaign committee for the Central Military Department and K. A. Shumaker, of Y. M. C. A. Secretary of Illinois, was made Campaign Director.

The chairman of the fifteen State Committees will make up the Department Campaign Committee. The campaign committee will also simultaneously in all states and cities during the week of November 11-19.

REV. AND MRS. F. F. LEWIS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

CHAPTER VI.

The Wife of Francois Cassion. It is vague, all that transpired. I knew then, and recall now, much of the scene, yet it returns to memory more in a passing picture than an actual reality in which I was an actor. But one clear impression dominated my brain—my helplessness to resist the command of La Barre. His word was law in the colony, and from it there was no appeal, save to the king. Through a swimming mist I saw his face, stern, dark, threatening, and then glimpsed Cassion approaching me, a smile curling his thin lips. I sprang back from him, yet arose to my feet, trembling so that I clung to the chair to keep erect.

"Do not touch me, monsieur," I said in a voice which scarcely sounded like my own. Cassion stood still, the smile of triumph leaving his face. La Barre turned, his eyes cold and hard.

"What is this, mademoiselle? You would dare disobey me?"

I caught my breath, gripping the chair with both hands.

"No, Monsieur le Gouverneur," I answered, surprised at the clearness with which I spoke. "That would be useless; you have behind you the power of France, and I am a mere girl. Nor do I appeal, for I know well the cause of your decision. It is indeed my privilege to appeal to Holy church for protection from this outrage, but not through such representative as I see here."

"Pere le Guard is chaplain of my household."

"And servant to your will, monsieur. 'Tis known in all New France he is more diplomat than priest. Nay! I take back my word, and will make trial of his priesthood. Father, I do not love this man, nor marry him of my own free will. I appeal to you, to the church, to refuse the sanction."

The priest stood with fingers interlocked, and head bowed, nor did his eyes meet mine.

"I am but the humble instrument of those in authority, daughter," he replied gently, "and must perform the sacred duties of my office. 'Tis your own confession that your hand has been pledged to Monsieur Cassion."

"By Hugo Chevet, not myself."

"Enough of this," broke in La Barre sternly, and he gripped my arm. "The girl hath lost her head, and such controversy is unseemly in my presence. Pere le Guard, let the ceremony proceed."

"Try It, Monsieur, If You Doubt How My Race Repays Insult."

"Is your order, monsieur?"

"Ay! do I not speak my will plainly enough? Come, the hour is late, and our king's business is of more import than the whim of a girl."

I never moved, never lifted my eyes. I was conscious of nothing, but helpless, impotent, azer, of voiceless shame. They might force me to go through the form, but never would they make me the wife of this man. My heart throbbed with rebellion, my mind hardened into revolt. I knew all that occurred, realized the significance of every word and act, yet it was as if they appertained to someone else. I felt the clanking touch of Cassion's hand on my nerveless fingers, and I must have answered the interrogatories of the priest, for his voice drowned on, meaningless to the end. It was only in the silence which followed that I seemed to regain consciousness, and a new grip on my numbed faculties. Indeed I was still groping in the fog, bewildered, inert, when La Barre gave utterance to a coarse laugh.

"Congratulations, Francois," he cried. "A fair wife, and not so unwilling after all. And now your first kiss."

The sneer of these words was like a slap in the face, and all the hatred, and indignation I felt seethed to the surface. A heavy paper knife lay on the desk, and I gripped it in my fingers, and stepped back, facing them. The mist seemed to roll away, and I saw their faces, and there must have been that in mine to startle them, for even La Barre gave back a step, and the grin faded from the thin lips of the commissaire.

"This ended then," I said, and my voice did not falter. "I am this man's wife. Very well, you have had your way; now I will have mine. Listen to what I shall say, Monsieur le Gouverneur, and you also, Francois Cassion. By rite of church you call me wife, but that is your only claim. I knew your law, and that this ceremony has sealed my lips. I am your captive, nothing more; you can rob me now—but mark you! all that you will ever get is money. Monsieur Cassion, if you dare lay so much as a finger on me, I will kill you as I would a snake. I know what I say, and mean it. You kiss me! Try it, monsieur, if you doubt how my race repays insult. I will go with you; I will bear your name; this the law compels, but I am still mistress of my soul, and of my body. You hear me, messieurs? You understand?"

Cassion stood leaning forward, just where my first words had held him motionless. As I paused his eyes were on my face, and he lifted a hand to wipe away drops of perspiration. La Barre crumpled the paper he held savagely.

"So," he exclaimed, "we have unchained a tiger cat. Well, all this is naught to me; and Francois, I leave you and the wilderness to do the taming. In faith, 'tis time already you were off. You agree to accompany the party without resistance, madame?"

"As well there, as here," I answered contemptuously.

The giant growled something inarticulate through his beard, not altogether, I thought, to La Barre's liking, for his face darkened.

"By St. Anne! 'tis a happy family amid which you start your honey moon. Monsieur Cassion," he ejaculated at length, "but go you must, though I send a file of soldiers with you to the boats. Now leave me, and I would hear no more until word comes of your arrival at St. Louis."

We left the room together, the three of us, and no one spoke, as we traversed the great assembly hall, in which dancers still lingered, and gained the outer hall. Cassion secured my cloak, and I wrapped it about my shoulders, for the night air without was already chill, and then, yet in unbroken silence, we passed down the steps into the darkness of the street. I walked beside Chevet, who was growling to himself, scarce sober enough to clearly realize what had occurred, and so we followed the commissaire down the steep path which led to the river.

Vaguely I comprehended that I was no longer Adele la Chesnayne, but the wife of that man I followed. A word, a muttered prayer, an uplifted hand, had made me his slave, his vassal. Nothing could break the bond between us save death. I might hate, despise, revile, but the bond held. This thought grew clearer as my mind readjusted itself, and the full horror of the situation took possession of me. Yet there was nothing I could do; I could neither escape nor fight, nor had I a friend to whom I could appeal. Suddenly I realized that I still grasped in my hand the heavy paper knife I had snatched up from La Barre's desk, and I thrust it into the waistband of my skirt. It was my only weapon of defense, yet to know I had even that seemed to bring me a glow of courage.

We reached the river's edge and halted. Below us, on the bank, the blazing fire emitted a red gleam reflecting on the water, and showing us the dark outlines of waiting canoes, and seated figures. Gazing about Cassion broke the silence, his voice assuaging the harshness of authority.

"Three canoes! Where is the other? Huh! if there be delay now, someone will make answer to me. Pass the word for the sergeant; ah! is this you, Le Claire?"

"All is prepared, monsieur."

He glared at the stocky figure fronting him in infantry uniform.

"Prepared! You have but three boats at the bank."

"The other is below, monsieur; it is loaded and waits to lead the way."

"Ah! and who is in charge?"

"Was it not your will that it be the guide—the Sleur d'Artigny?"

"Sacred! but I had forgotten the fellow. Ay! 'tis the best place for him. And are all provisions and arms aboard? You checked them, Le Claire?"

"With care, monsieur; I watched the stowing of each piece; there is nothing forgotten."

I found myself in one of the canoes, so filled with men any movement was almost impossible, yet of this I did not complain, for my Uncle Chevet was next to me, and Cassion took place at the steering oar in the stern. To be separated from him was all I asked. He had won't be had used his power to conquer! Very well, now he would pay the price. He thought me a helpless girl; he would find me a woman, and a La Chesnayne. The tears left my eyes, and my head lifted, as purpose and decision returned.

We were skirting the northern bank, the high bluffs blotting out the stars, with here and there, far up above us, a light gleaming from some distant window, its rays reflecting along the black water. The Indian paddlers worked silently, driving the sharp prow of the heavily laden canoe steadily up stream. Farther out to the left was the dim outline of another boat, keeping pace with ours, the moving figures of the paddlers revealed against the water beyond.

As the sun forced its way through an obscuring cloud, the mist rose slowly and drifted aside, giving me glimpse of the canoe in advance, although it remained indistinct, a vague speck in the waste of water. I sat motionless, gazing about at the scene, yet vaguely comprehending the nature of our surroundings. My mind reviewed the strange events of the past night, and endeavored to adjust itself to my new environment. Almost in an instant of time my life had utterly changed—I had been married and wedded to a man whom I despised, and forced to accompany him into the unknown wilderness. It was like a dream, a delirium of fever, and even yet I could not seem to comprehend its dread reality. But the speeding canoes, the strange faces, the occasional sound of Cassion's voice, the slumbering figure of Chevet was evidence of truth not to be ignored, and ahead yonder, a mere outline, was the boat which contained D'Artigny. What would he say, or do, when he learned the truth? Would he care greatly? Had I read rightly the message of his eyes? Could I have trust, and confidence in his loyalty? Would he accept my explanation! or would he condemn me for this act in which I was in no wise to blame? Mother of God! it came to me that it was not so much Monsieur Cassion I feared, as the Sleur d'Artigny. What would be his verdict? My heart seemed to stop its beating, and tears dimmed my eyes, as I gazed across the water at that distant canoe. I knew then that all my courage, all my hope, centered on his decision—the decision of the man I loved.

Dinner Stories

The children happened to be present when mother received an applicant for the position of nursemaid.

"Why were you discharged from your last place?" asked the mother, when she had ascertained, after much ingenuity, that the applicant had not voluntarily left that place.

"Well, ma'am," said the girl, very frankly, "to tell the truth, I sometimes forgot to wash the children, ma'am."

Whereupon there came from the children in chorus, "Oh, mother, please engage her!"

A policeman popped his head inside a crowded car.

"Excuse me, ladies and gentlemen," he said, "but there are two swell thieves here."

"Dear me!" cried a nervous-looking individual, in shocked tones. "I cannot risk my reputation in here."

Up jumped another gentleman with a gold watchchain and white waistcoat.

"I must get out at once," he said. "I have just taken some money out of the bank, and I won't chance being robbed."

The policeman then nudged the conductor.

"It's all right now, drive on; they have both got out."

She was sitting patiently in the waiting room when her spouse came to her wearing a dejected look.

"It's no use, Sarah, I can't get it anywhere. I have been all over the town, and tried all the shops where they sell picture postcards, and none of 'em have got, or ever heard of, one called Sarah at the Pump."

"Sarah at the Pump!" screamed the old lady. "Sarah at the Pump! The picture postcard I wanted was Rebecca at the Well!"

JANESVILLE PROOF

Should Convince Every Janesville Reader.

"The frank statement of a neighbor telling the merits of a remedy. Bids you pause and believe. The same endorsement by some stranger far away commands no belief at all. Here's a Janesville case. A Janesville citizen testifies. Read and be convinced."

C. P. Lester, 1017 Wheeler St., Janesville, says: "I hadn't been feeling well for several months, my system seemed to be filled with uric acid. My whole body ached at times and it seemed swollen. I was dull and languid and had little strength or energy. My kidneys didn't do their work right. Doan's Kidney Pills made me well."

MORE THAN FOUR YEARS LATER, Mr. Lester said: "I wouldn't be without Doan's Kidney Pills in the house. I am glad to again recommend them."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Lester has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

PSALMS OF DELIVERANCE.

The Hebrews lived in Palestine were the greatest hindrance to the Hebrews returning from exile in the work of rebuilding Jerusalem. Nebuchadnezzar left only the "poorest of the land." They were the mudsills and poor white trash of Syria. Lack of spirit and initiative they were a dead weight to the newcomers. In addition to this were the Samaritans and other aliens who had made considerable encroachments upon the territory. It would have been far better if the state of the land could have entered a howling wilderness.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX
SERIES START TODAY

Chicago, Oct. 6.—With all the griping and grumping that could be mustered from the space of a representative of the nation's two greatest cities meeting in a world series, Chicago and St. Louis today waited for the signal that would send the Giants and the White Sox into their first grapple this afternoon.

Happily for the ease for so long, the world series takes on a new significance with its playing this year. The pen of the west is going in to replace the battery of the east. The fact that the Giants and the White Sox are considered to be more evenly matched than any other contesting world series teams since the fall of 1905, adds more punch to the excitement of the contest and interest that is attending the big games.

New York retained a slight favor in the betting, due solely to the fact that New York money predominates in the betting for numerous backers of the White Sox. Critics generally are picking the White Sox to uphold the honor of the American league.

There was no possibility that the game would be postponed, as the weather is perfect for the contest. The only slight possibility of a postponement is due to the fact that the New York share of the games will be played, seats more than 35,000, but the record for a single contest is more than 42,000, as established last year at Ebbets field when the Red Sox and Dodgers were competing. It would be miraculous if one of the two fields could be stretched to hold more fans than this figure.

The playing of the rival infielders, the work of the rival pitchers, will hold the attention of the spectators. John McGraw's trio of southern heavyweights usually have done the Giants into their penultimate. The same may be said of Eddie Cicotte, Danforth and Williams for the White Sox. Cicotte, it was believed, was certain to start the game for Chicago, with Porcelli, the probable choice for the Giants, although some are inclined to look upon Boynton or Schupp as McGraw's favorite.

TY COBB AND ROUSH
WIN BATTING HONORS

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Ty Cobb, the Detroit star, and Eddie Roush, the hard hitting outfielder with Cincinnati, are the top batting champions of the major leagues.

Cobb, with an average of .380, finished with a lead of 22 points over Ted Spenser of Cleveland, who led the American league in batting average last season. Roush, who finished with a .342 average, showed the way to the National league batters with 342-21 points ahead of Roger Hornsby of St. Louis, his nearest rival. Cobb and Roush included the champion of the season for the western teams.

In the American league the fight for base stealing honors with fifty thefts pitting Hank Kypke of Cleveland against Cobb, who led with 54. In four games Chapman stole six bases, Bobby Roth, Chapman's team mate, who led the lead, a score of 54-51 and Cobb also topped the sacrifice hitters with 63.

Cobb was credited with 224 hits in 523 games. He cracked them out for 122 bases. His record in 1917 was 24 triples and six home runs. Dipp at New York, however, leads in clutch drives, having made nine up to Oct. 5.

Charles Funch, the Detroit shortstop, is in possession of scoring honors, having recorded 112 times, with Cobb six runs behind him. Detroit clinging to team batting honors with .255, the champion Chicago outfit five points behind.

Leading batters who played in half or more of their club's games: Cobb, Detroit, .380; Spenser, Cleveland, .358; Funch, Detroit, .347; Vane, Detroit, .317; Felsch, Chicago, .308; Melvin, Philadelphia, .306; Lewis, Boston, .304; Harris, Cleveland, .297; Jackson, Chicago, .293; Chapman, Cleveland, .290.

Leading pitchers participating in five or more games, rated according to earned runs per game: R. W. L. RR. Photo, Chicago, .49 28 12 1.54; Ciolek, Chicago, .44 19 14 1.78; Mays, Boston, .43 22 9 1.83; Fisher, Chicago, .40 17 13 1.82; Ruth, Boston, .39 20 13 1.93; Buxby, Cleveland, .49 23 13 1.93; Ayer, Washington, .39 19 19 1.98; Leonard, Boston, .37 16 17 2.14; Russell, Chicago, .37 27 2 2.14; Johnson, Wash., .37 22 16 2.17.

In the National league, Carey of Pittsburgh finished far in front for base stealing honors with fifty thefts in his credit. In the Wednesday games, Gray of Philadelphia and Robertson of New York were tied in home runs, each having 12. Burns of the championship New York club brought his total of runs scored up to 103. Home of Cincinnati trailed him with 91. Deal of Chicago topped the sacrifice hitters with 29.

Hornsby, the St. Louis shortstop, who finished second in batting, cracked his hits for a total of 34 bases, while the best Roush could do was 24 bases. Hornsby drove out 18 hits, which include 13 triples. Roush made 13 doubles and 15 triples and four circuit drives. In team batting Cincinnati had 263 and New York 260.

Leading batters who played in half of their club's games: Roush, Cincinnati, .341; Hornsby, St. Louis, .322; Kautz, New York, .307.

ON JOE JACKSON

Geo. Burns (above) and Joe Jackson.

The left fielders who will star in the world's series appear to be pretty well matched. Joe Jackson of the White Sox has about the same batting average as George Burns of the Giants, though some point out that Jackson must face better pitching.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

The New York Yanks are as anxious as can be to make grand openings next season. They may not buy out the whole Washington team, as cheerfully mentioned in a rumor not long ago, but they seem sure to get at least one infielder from the Senators. Then too they seem to have some promising recruits. Young Lamm, an outfielder from Baltimore, seems to be a gifted youth without any of the faults of those they are holding, throwing and running are held to be quite slick. Fuel, a child wonder and backstop, is there every way. Camp and Viek, two more outfielders, look good. Fugger, a runner running the Yanks next season, as many declare will be the case, he should be able to weed out the false alarms and build up a first division team. With Gilheoley, Fipp, Peckin, Walters, Baker, Caldwell, Fisher, Shawkey, Russell and Shocker and a few more almost as good the Yanks under Huggins should amount to something next season.

Bennie Leonard is complaining that there is no one near his class who can give him a good fight and is thinking about taking on the welter, Patsy Cline would put up an interesting fight against Leonard, but he couldn't take the punches. Willie Jackson is too slow and not at all clever enough to stay many rounds with Leonard, and though Dundee might make it in the ring, Leonard would be sure to beat him. Perhaps Joe Weiling is the only lightweight near Leonard's class, but he is disabled and besides he's in the navy. Which reminds us, by the way, that Leonard might enlist somewhere if he's really looking for fighting. When he won his title from Freddie Welsh he said more about enlisting than he has since.

Jack Combs is the king of all world's series pitchers. He holds the record of five games won and none lost and that's better than anyone else has been able to do so far. And it's a cinch whatever the results are in the present world's series Jack's record will not be disturbed. Next to Combs comes Babe Adams, who won three games and lost none, a remarkable performance in a way, as Adams won all of his games in the same series when the Pirates beat the Tigers in 1909. Joe Wood, Bill Dingen, Ernie Shore and Orvie Overall each won three out of four world's series games and Ed Walsh, Dick Rudolph, Bill James, George Foster and Dutch Leonard have all won two games apiece and lost none.

Say what you will of Jawn McGraw, he has a way with him when it comes to handling ball players. He can make em jump through or do just about anything he orders. Jimmy Smith is the latest example. McGraw picked him up at no cost whatever a number of weeks ago and now the youngster is doing great work for the Giants. He is a natural fielder and a very smart one, but his hitting has improved him a good tip every few days and the kid is learning the art of swat in amazing fashion. Some Giant infielder is going to be out of a nice job next season.

Our old friend Matty won't be able to dash off any of his world's series stories this season, as the Cincinnati Reds and the Cleveland Indians have planned a post-season series. That will keep him away from the big games. Thus Matty will lose the nickles he has usually gathered through literature each fall and the fans will miss his writings. Matty's baseball documents are enjoyed by all of us more than most because everyone knows that he really writes what he sees and does not plan a bit of the stuff that other players were "writing." Matty is a smart lad and can write more interesting stuff than a good many who make money by writing their special business. There are one or two other players who are as honest as Matty about it and really write their own stuff, such as Eddie Collins and Buck Weaver of the White Sox.

Football in the east seems to be in a rather uncertain state even though quite a number of the best schools have decided to go through with their schedules. Others of the big schools are in a perplexity, however, and Harvard especially doesn't quite seem to know what to do about it. Recent reports are that Harvard will have a varsity team on the gridiron a little later in the season to please the student body, though she does not plan to play a regular schedule. There will likely be games with some of the New England colleges and perhaps with a number of military schools. A few veterans are back and a team will be built about them, using the best of whatever material appears among the freshmen. So far there is no reason to expect much of the freshmen. The experienced gridiron stars who will be back to school at Harvard this year are all boys under the draft ages. Almost all of the rest are preparing for service abroad.

Eddie Cicotte, the brightest individual star of the White Sox, has also the distinction of being the oldest man on the team. Cicotte is thirty-three years old and the baby of the bunch is Jordan, utility first baseman, who is twenty-two. Manager Rowland is five years older than Cicotte and Kinsman, sub-manager, coach and baseball's greatest goat-getter, is fifty-one. Charley Comiskey is fifty-eight, Eddie Collins is thirty, Chic Gandil is twenty-eight, Buck Weaver is twenty-six, Joe Jackson is twenty-nine, Hap Felsch is twenty-six, Nemo Leibold is twenty-five, Ray Schalk is twenty-five, Urban Faber is twenty-nine, Reb Russell is twenty-eight, Joe Benz is thirty-one, Dave Dwyer is twenty-seven and Cy Williams is twenty-four.

The Chicago Cubs are expected to look good next summer. If the fans and critics will let Mitchell alone and give him a chance to carry out his own ideas (which is what President Weismann desires above all things), it is probable that he will have a pennant contender in the next National league race. Managers in Chicago have many sad days when they have to hear the knocks and sneers of those they are trying to please. Clarence Rowland had to go up against a lot of this and yet he had the tact and diplomacy to deal with it. He has pulled out of the tight places in great style and has won a pennant in spite of everything. In spite of the fact that he was a husher and in fact an awful skunk any way you look at it. According to the knucklers, Nemo Leibold has crawled back into their holes. But there are still a few around to bray at Mitchell. Fred Mitchell hasn't the graceful poise of old "Patsy" Rowland in dealing with such matters, but in spite of it, he is a star at handling pitchers and his experience through the past year will set him fine for next season.

PEMBERTHY WINS BELOIT
TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 6.—Awards in the Y. M. C. A. all city tennis tourney made yesterday gave Charles Pemberty of the Northwestern university dental school first cup, Prof. K. T. Waugh now at Fort Sheridan second, and Prof. M. H. Hedges, Beloit college English instructor, third. The tourney was completed here in August, but through a mix up on the final match between Prof. Waugh and Pemberty, both men claimed the title. The association committee was called to decide the controversy and gave Pemberty the cup. There were thirty entries in the event.

ORDER OF EASTERN STAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Abbie Carter, La Crosse, was chosen worthy grand matron at the closing session of grand chapter Order of the Eastern Star. E. W. Walker, Delavan, was chosen grand worth patron. Other officers were advanced from their last year's offices. Mrs. Helen M. Laffin, Milwaukee, was re-elected secretary and Mrs. Lucille Parker, Milwaukee, was chosen treasurer.

The word "massage" is derived from a Greek word meaning to knead. The practice dates back to the earliest medical history.

U. S. AMBULANCE MEN
DRIVE IN ALBANIA

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Somewhere in Albania, Sept. 6.—Twenty-six Californians who form one of the ambulance sections of the American field service, are the latest arrivals in Albania. All of them have driven in France and experienced the intensive warfare that goes on there, and who found the work here much harder though just as interesting.

The shocking condition of most of the roads is as largely responsible as any other factor for making the work more difficult. The country is mountainous and breakdowns are the regular order of the day. As frequently as not wheels come off or break and the ambulances have to be left on mountain roadsides until assistance can reach them.

Many of the "posts" are perched on hillsides, often in plain sight of the Austrians, and their trenches are frequently in view. By the same token the Austrians can see the ambulances as they climb up and down. But warfare in this section is not only "gentle," so that the Americans are never fired on, but the transport of patients up the hills is so difficult that it is never wasted on moving objects and is saved for definite stationary objects.

Air raids are frequent and exciting for them. That is principally because the Austrians seem to choose just that time for raiding that the French are over Austrian territory, and none of the aviators ever seem to get hurt. The Americans had great difficulty at the beginning with the food and water and climate but are used to them now. In between their duties they find time to study the native population which in general is ragged and poverty-stricken. Many of them speak English, since they have been in the United States as contract laborers.

Much of the country has been badly devastated by this and preceding wars, many villages have been razed and deserted, while scarcely a one but shows evidence of the struggles. Prices are sky high and going higher all the time. Bread which used to sell for thirty centimes per loaf before the Balkan wars, is two francs per loaf now, and has been five francs a loaf during the past winter. The population would have starved in fact if it had not been for the French army, because the people had sold its food supply to the Austro-German forces.

Gazette Classified Ads are as easy to read as the directory. The arrangement of the ads is such that you may find the Classified Ads of a particular kind that you are interested in and not be compelled to read other ads that you are not interested in.

Gazette Classified Ads are departmentized so that the reader will always be able to get the largest possible privilege of selection; he gets his choice from all that are offered of any particular article, thing or business. The reader thus gets the advantage of choice with the use of the least amount of time. It is only a matter of a few minutes' time for you to find what you want in the Classified Ad columns of The Gazette. Try it right now.
